Dr Sangamwar's laboratory studies the molecular pharmaceutics and chemico- biological interactions responsible for poor pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics of drugs. Most of this work involves elusive mechanisms of drug efflux by efflux transporters, P-gp, BCRP and MRP; studies on substrate specificity and reaction phenotyping of UGT1A4, UGT1A8, UGT1A9, UGT1A10; and substrate specificity in CYP1A1, CYP1A2, CYP1B1. Particular emphasis has been placed on increasing bioavailability of drugs which efflux through membrane transporters and extensively metabolised in gastrointestinal tract. Long term focus of the laboratory is towards drug development through molecular level interactions of the drug during absorption, distribution, metabolism and elimination.

An important project currently underway are prodrug synthesis and formulation, co-crystals, pH dependent solubility, and nanocarrier drug delivery of drugs for improving the pharmacokinetics and pharmacodynamics.
